Erica Deeral (on behalf of herself and the Gamaay Peoples) & Ors v Gordon Charlie & Ors [8 December 1997]

In June 1996, a native title claim was made collectively by individuals representing themselves and/or their Hopevale clan to the National Native Title Tribunal in relation to 110,000 hectares of land and water in the Hopevale area, near Cooktown.

Initially 9 clans were involved but this grew to 11. The 11 clans were the Gamaay, Dingaal, Nugal, Thuubi, Nguurruumungu, Dharrpa, Binhthi, Thiithaarr, Thanil, Nguymbaarr, Ngaatha, Gulaal and Buurnga Peoples. The clans agreed to apply collectively for native title rights. In February 1996, the clans agreed to form a body called the Hopevale Congress of Clans. The individuals were Erica Deeral, Phillip Baru, Bertie Gordon, Herman Bambie, Brian Cobus, Wayne Coats, Pat Wallace, Eddie Deemal, Hector Michael, George Rosendale, Terrence Jacko, Martin James, Bertie Gordon, Herman Bambie, Pat Wallace, Eddie Deemal and Terrence Jacko.

The collective body was called the Hopevale Congress of Clans. This relationship was formalized in October 1997. A series of mediations followed to resolve internal issues between clan representatives, in particular regarding clan boundaries.

Respondents included the State of Queensland, Hopevale Aboriginal Council, Cape Flattery Silica Mines Pty Limited, Cook Shire Council, Far North Queensland Electricity Corporation, Telstra Corporation Limited, Queensland Commercial Fishermen's Organisation, Australian Maritime Safety Authority and the Cape York Land Council Aboriginal Corporation.

It was determined that the Hopevale Congress of Clans held native title rights and interests in the claim area where interested parties have reached agreement. This decision was aided by a detailed anthropological report.

The Dhubbiwarra Aboriginal Corporation, the Hope Vale Congress Aboriginal Corporation and the Walmbaar Aboriginal Corporation are the body corporates that manage the native title.

Congoo v State of Queensland [28 June 2001]

Four native title claims were made by the Bar Barrum People of Northern Queensland first lodged in 1996.

Two claims were determined in 2001 regarding land within the Atherton Tableland.

The first claim was decided April 2001. For this claim the applicants were Thomas Congoo and John Edward Wason on behalf of the Bar-Barrum People. This regarded lands and waters located on the Atherton Tablelands in and around the Walsh River and west of the Wild River in Far North Queensland. Respondents were the State of Queensland, the Mareeba Shire Council, Ergon Energy Corporation Limited, Telstra Corporation Limited and Consolidated Tin Mines Limited.

It was decided that the Bar Barrum People are the native title holders over parts of the claim area. The areas successfully claimed consisted of unallocated crown land, reserved land or land already held by, or for the benefit of, Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander People. The ruling recognised the interests of other parties in the claim area. It was decided that native title in a number of areas no longer existed.

The Mbabaram Aboriginal Corporation is the body corporate that manages the native title.

The second claim was decided June 2001. For this claim the applicants were Thomas Congoo and John Edward Wason their own behalf and on behalf of the Bar-Barrum People. This regarded land and inland waters within the areas of the Herberton and Mareeba Shire Councils on the Atherton Tableland.

Respondents were the State of Queensland, Herberton Shire Council, Mareeba Shire Council, Ergon Energy Corporation Limited and Telstra Corporation Limited.

It was decided that the Bar-Barrum People have non-exclusive native title rights and interests in the claim area. The rights of other parties in the claim area were also recognized.
